Who knew Brotherhood of Man were so far ahead of their time when they won the 1976 Eurovision Song Contest with "Save Your Kisses for Me"?

Some say that wine is dialogue between Man and nature. If so then the highly skilled Georgians who make wine in Qvevris are having a really intense conversation. The Glekhuri journey starts with the harvest only then can the maker see which grapes should come into the qvevris. Sometimes Kisi, Kakhuvi, Tsisola, Japrouki every day the grapes spend in the qvevris is a delicate dance between clay and grape and skin and song only the most skilled makers, infused with the winemaking traditions of millennia can tell that precise moment when the wine is ready.

PRODUCTION

The wine is made from the traditional Kisi grape grown in the villages of Akhmeta district in south west Kakheti. 100% Kisi grapes are grown in clay and stone soils, whole bunches are fermented in underground qvevri for 6 months, lending the wine it's amber colour, distinctive flavour and mildly tannic structure. 6500 bottles were produced.

TASTING NOTE

Kisi is a native Georgian grape with sweet spice notes and great acidity, perfect for maintaining freshness. Fermentation in Qvevri adds great complexity and texture. Don't chill it, you'll just bring the tannins forward at the expense of the lovely flavours - serve cool, not cold!

FOOD MATCH

Works well with light poultry dishes, charcuterie and salads. Serve cool, not cold.
